Representative Flood on Viva Voce Voting.

FINDS MUCH OPPOSITION

Many People, He Claims, Refrain from Participating in Primaries Rather Than Declare Their Choice Publicly--Gossip.

The Times-Dispatch Bureau,
No. 1417 G Street, N. W.,
Washington, D. C., August 12th, I and there is the most general and the very strongest opposition to the viva voce method of voting in Democratic primaries," said Representative Hal Flood, of the Tenth Virginia District, to-day,
"I was at the Botetourt County Court at Finensite Monday. There was a large crowd in attendance, and though nobody way doing much business, everybody stayed in town until late, talking politics chiefly, It was a fine day for that. Noariy everybody with whom I talked expressed himself as strongly opposed to the viva, voce system. A number of people said they would not go to the polls because it was sought to make them announce to the bystanders their choice as between candidates. They would not midmaking such a declaration at the election, for that would be only a public announcement of choice as between political parties, but they are opposed to making public choice as between two of their rielghbors who are candidates for the same office."

office."

A gentleman listening to Mr. Floed's talk said he had seen in one county in Virginia this year a number of people go to the polls at a primary and come away without voting when they found they had to declare their choice to the world.

Mr. Flood will probably go home tomerrow. He came on matters of business for his constituents, and was at the Navy and Postoffice Departments for some time. Mr. Flood called attention to a recent regulation of the Postoffice Department concerning the establishment of rural delivery routes which will work a hardship on the people of the South and West. The department has decided that no route shall be established unless as many as one hundred families can be served. The result will be that in many sections of Virsinia the people will be depied the advantage of free delivery, owing to the country's being so sparsely settled. The same will be found to be true in many States of the South and West, but true in hardly no instance in the Northern Middle States and in New England. Mr. Flood argued the question with Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Sristow, but to no effect.

An official of the Postoffice Department and to-day that rural free delivery would receive the especial attention of Congress at the coming session, and that the new regulation would come in for the chief amount of discussion.

It was said at the Postoffice Department to-day that about one-half of the five million dollars appropriation for the establishment of new rural delivery lines had been expended. The appropriation for the maintenance of lines already established amounted to eight millions, in round numbers, making a total rural delivery appropriation of something over thirteen millions.

Mr. Leslie H. Martin, Senator Martin's brother and secretary, was also here to-day, and went over to Baltimore this afternoon. He expects to be there a day or two on business.

Senator Martin insists that it is un schafor Martin insists that it is un-wiss for Democrats to declare them-selves for certain candidates for the presidency thus early. He thinks that it should be the policy of all Democrats to wait until the nominating convention is much closer at hand than at present. Representative James Hay, of the Sev-enth District, was here a short time last night, en route home from Capon Springs. where Mrs. Hay is at present. He left for where Mrs. Hay is at present. He left to his home, in Madison county, to-day. Representative Hay said he thought the Democrats were daily becoming more of a unit for the nomination of Mr. Gorman to the presidency. He thinks Gorman carry New York and the South, which should go very far towards electing him.

At the Cheatres

There were two packed houses at the Casino yesterday and the bill, so full casino yesterday and the bill, so full of novelty and attractiveness, seems destined to make a new record for the season, so auspiciously begun last week. There is diversity of opinion, even among the cities, as to which of the six acts to the best, and that difference argues well for the entertaining qualities of the whole.

is the best, and that well for the entertaining qualities of the whole.

There seems to be no doubt that vaude-ville is the ideal summer entertainmen and that playgoers welcome the departure, after a season of road combinations and heavy productions. The lightness the variety, and the charm of the combination of music and comed and the novelty of the other acts, works splendidly and many people visit the theatre over and over again.

The advance sale of the week has been so large that Manager Wells has afranged for two more vaudeville bills to follow this week's attraction. The one

SAUNDERS GOES DOWN

Given Thirty Days for Rash Talk About Spikes.

James Saunders, of Hartford, Conn., was given thirty days in jail by Justice Crutchfield yesterday for alleged rash talk in connection with the street car situation. The man is alleged to have taid, while under the influence of liquor on West Broad Street the other night, that he was here to drive a few spikes in the car tracks, and desired some assistance in the matter.

He was arrested by Bergeant Barfoot, and said in court that he had no recollection of having used the words. He pleaded for his own release, and said he

A Correction.

A Correction.

Editor of The Times-Dispatch:

Sir.—An article appears in your paper under date of August 11th, in which the writer (from Meherrin) starts out to give an account of the proceedings at Lunenburg Courthouse on the 11th instant (court day). In justice to myself, I sek that you will allow me space in your paper to correct your Meherrin correspondent. I am quoted in the abovementioned article as having said that, "in case I was elected to the Senate, the people would not have to send off to large cities in order to quench their thirst." What is said was this: That while I am more an advocate for whiskey than I am for the drys, yet I am an advocate of uniform, and not class, legislation, and that the Mann bill was and is class legislation, and that the Mann bill was and is class legislation, and that the Mann bill was and is class legislation, and that the Mann bill was and is class legislation, and that the Mann bill was and is class legislation, and that the was not class, legislation, and that the was not class, legislation, and that the was not class in the county, and in towns numbering less than 500 inhabitants, the people were or are not allowed to vote on the question; and that in view of the fact that it is a public question. This, Mr. Editor, is my position, and it is a perfectly tenable one.

SIBERT CEASE IS PUT UNDER PEACE BOND

L. Sibert Cease was in the Police Court yesterday on the charge of threatening and abusing hisw ife, Mrs. Lucy Cease, and Justice Crutchfield required of him a bond in the sum of $100 to keep the peace for twelve months. In default of this Cease went to jail, and will serve the term unless the bond is given. Mrs. Cease appeared against her husband and declared to His Honor she feared bodily harm at the hands of her husband. Cease is the man who was recently shot in a mysterious manner at his home in Henrico county, and has been out of the hospital only a short time.

Constable Eubank, of Henrico county, yesterday served a warrant on Cease in the city jail charsing him with desaulting and threatening his wife. He is wanted on this charge in the county, and also as a witness in the Snyder case. and Justice Crutchfield required of him a

TOBACCO MEN VERY BLUE

Bright Leaf. Bought High, is Very Low.

SOME ARE FACING RUIN

They Fear, With Large Supply. Low Prices and a Tight Money Market, They Will Be Unable to Stand the Strain.

Leaf tobacco dealers in Richmond and several other places are suffering heavily as a result of the steady decline in the prices of the bright crop, and it is even said that some of them are facing ruln. High-priced tobacco, purchased a year ago, when the bright weed was in great demand, when the supply was small, and when the figures were correspondingly lorge, are now sticking like a dead weight in the face of conditions the reverse in every particular.

The situation has, indeed, become a very

in the face of conditions the reverse in every particular.

The situation has, indeed, become a very scrious one, and a gloomy view of the outlook for the future is taken by many. The marketing of the new bright crop has just begun, and the way it starts off in a dragging, dull and spiritless fashion is far from encouraging. As is most usually the case, however, the very thing which makes the condition so had now will operate to make it good in the hereafter by driving the tobacco planter to raising other stuff, thinning out the crop, and making tobacco scarce and prices high again, when the farmers will hark back, and the retrograde movement beetin again. The market moves in cycles of more or less regular recurrence, and there are signs reported from the South that developments there will start the trade on tho upward trend again.

Speaking of the matter, a prominent leaf dealer of Richmend declared that he and many others in his class had been sadly caught in the movement that sent the bright market to the bottom. Some of his colleagues were practically ruined, he said, and were in a decidedly had frame of mind. As will be recalled, the prices on bright were soaring high a year or two ago, and many men reaped a harvest. On every side there was a great demand, and as the old stock began rapidly to disappear, the figures went up. The leaf dealers went into it rather heavily, and a number of them laid in large supplies. Then the market began to break down, and when it started it went with a thump. The thump scattered many of the leaf dealers right and left, and right at this moment some of them are floundering hopelessly.

The opening of the market to the new bright crop brings with it no gleam of hope in the way of prices. In North and South Carolina, where the bright is mostly sold, the first of the new crop is being bought up at 41-2 and 5 cents.

Last year the same grade of tobacco brought 8 to 9 cents.

CHANGE for BETTER.

In the midst of this darkness, however, there is one ray of light that seems to promi he says.

The cause which will bring about this beneficent effect is teh decision or the de-termination of t ehfarmers in the South. Years ago when bright tobacco was high, termination of teniners in the south.

Years ago when bright tobacco was high, these farmers were tempted to stop growing cotton, which was low, and plant their lands in the pungent weed. Now the situation is reversed, and they will stop growing tobacco and plant their lands again in cotton. The bad prices for the new crop settled the matter. Next year the farmers will try something more lucrative, for while tobacco is low, cotton is high. Many millions of pounds are raised in this disaffected section, and the sudden stop to this large output will put the market up again.

Such are the statements, at least, made by leaf tobacco men here. They appear to lay great stress on the movement and to look pon it as an interposition that will pull them out of the mire.

Americans Lead in the Art.

Frank Presbrey, of New York, the well known advertising agent and vice-president of the Association of American Advertising Agents, in a recent lecture at Chautauqua on the Evolution in Advertising, said: "Advertising is as old as the human race, but it has two histories, the history of advertising as an institution, and its history as an api. The history of the art of advertising began yesterday, but advertising proper runs back through the ages and into the hage that hides the beginnings of humanity. Advertising in our gwn country began with the estabilishment of newspapers, and America may fairly claim to have developed advertising as an art. The development of advertising is very recent, a matter of less than twenty-five years. Advertising has wrought a revolution in the periodical literature within the last two decades and has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and each has brought down the cost of our newspapers, giving us more of them and the field is City Accountant Carlon McCarthy.
